ANTIOCH WINS FROM SILVER LAKE SUNDAY

Widakind's Offerings Are Pounded by Local Batters for 11 to 3 Victory

WILTON MAKES HOMER

Antioch opened up its baseball season Sunday with a decisive win over Silver Lake team (11-3). This game furnished the Antioch fans a fair idea of the team that is to represent them this year. Every member of the team was present with the exception of Kingsley, the captain of the team. Mr. Kingsley's father was accidentally killed Saturday night by a train while on his way to work.

"Red" Fields substituted for Kingsley and considering that this is the first time "Red" has ever caught Davidson, the fans are assured that there will be no weakness in the receiving end of the battery, and incidentally, "Red" is in a class by himself when it comes to picking off the high fliers. "Bobby" Wilton, again demonstrated that he is a big acquisition to any baseball team. Playing in right field, he pulled off a beautiful one-hand catch, getting the ball about a foot from the ground—and sent one of "Weld" and's fast ones sailing into the tall vines back of center field for the full route.

The team as a whole are a bunch of sluggers and with Kingsley to lead them Antioch should see some real ball games this year.

There is nothing now that can be said about Davidson's pitching. Between that fast hopper and slow in drop and changes of pace he seems to have all the batters of this section breaking their backs trying to get to him. With "Bobby" as a relief pitcher, the end of the battery can be chalked up as A1.

An errorless game on a crude diamond speaks enough for the team's infield, and what little chance the outfielders had to work in the short out field at Silver Lake, gives Antioch fans every encouragement as to a well-balanced team, and one that should be a winner.

The management is to be congratulated on its choice of players and it is hoped that every lover of this clean sport will get out and help support this team with regular attendance at the ball park.

The Burlington White Sox baseball team defeated the strong Rockford Maroons Sunday by a score of 6 to 0. Yun Wye, pitching for Burlington, was in splendid form and not a Rockford man got beyond second base.

Next Sunday the White Sox play the strong Lake Villa team at Athletic park, Burlington, the game being called at 2:30.

The Burlington Athletic park is now one of the finest in northern Wisconsin. A new grandstand has been erected, giving a seating capacity of over 1000.

First Drowning of Season Is at Area Sunday

The first drowning of the 1923 season in Lake county occurred Sunday afternoon at Butler Lake, Area. The victim was Julius Chepulis, Cicero, age 24, student at St. Mary's of the Lake, a Jesuit Theological seminary at Glendale Place, Area.

Chepulis, who was studying to be a priest, was rowing in the lake with two fellow students, when the row boat struck a tile of the bridge, capsizing, Chepulis being unable to swim, went down quickly, while his companions managed to swim to the boat and hold on until help arrived. They were rescued by James Flaherty, of Libertyville and Frank Kennedy, also of Libertyville. The men saved were Norbert O'Connell, age 22, and Andrew Gulecack, age 21, Chicago.

The drowning occurred at 4 p. m. on the portion of Butler lake on the premises of the Jesuit Seminary. While the lake is known as Butler lake, which flows through Libertyville, the seminary body of water is more or less an artificial lake.

THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS

By Zane Grey

"There had been months of unrest, of curiously painful wonderment that her position, her wealth, her popularity no longer sufficed. She believed that she had lived through the dreams and fancies of a girl to become a woman of the world. And she had gone on as before, a part of the glittering show, but no longer blind to the truth—that there was nothing in her luxurious life to make it significant."

But this New York society girl buys a cattle ranch which becomes the center of frontier warfare. She finds an object for her wealth and abilities; she finds the keenest zest in living and finally—she finds love.

Area Garage Is Destroyed By Flames

Damage estimated at $10,000 was caused on Saturday when fire of unknown origin swept the garage and store house of Townsend Smith, on Hawley avenue, Area, and destroyed thirteen automobiles.

Only one side of the building, a one-story frame affair, was left standing after the flames whipped by a strong wind, into their way through the place.

Smith and other workers about the garage were out of the building at the time and no injuries were reported.

The flames first attacked the roof over a storage room in the north end of the building. Passers by noted the blaze and notified the fire department of the village.

The fire fighters, arriving soon after the blaze was noticed, were helpless as the strong breeze fanned the flames and carried the fire through the wooden structure.

Playing water on the north end of the building, however, they were able to save one of the walls on that part. Smith had in the building at the time the thirteen cars, none of them new, it is said.

Smith had been planning on moving the agency from Area to Winthrop Harbor. The removal was to take place in a few days.

AUCTION SALE

There will be an auction sale on the John A. Strang farm in Millburn on next Saturday, May 12. Thirty-seven head of livestock will be placed on sale, consisting largely of high-grade Holsteins. There will also be a quantity of feed placed on sale. The property belongs to Lars Rasmussen and will be sold by L. J. Stocum. The sale will start at 1 o'clock.

A CORRECTION

The price quoted in last week's issue for milk for the month of May was $2.50. This was an error. It should have been $2.30.

The News published an item to the effect that the money secured from the recent dance of the Woman's Club was partly for the Boy Scouts.

This was wrong. The entire proceeds is to be used for the library.

Just Among Ourselves

It's exceedingly rude to belittle those who have passed away, but if Bert Williams had been at the high school and witnessed L. R. Watson as a black-faced comedian, he probably would have quit the stage and hired out as a porter, for this man Watson sure shoves a wicked shoe, and oh boy, can you imagine that guy in a corner manipulating a brace of African dominoes.

And when Vida Palmer and Maurice Mumford did their little love act, they didn't seem a least bit shaky—in fact they seemed "right at home." Gee, and just think, he had to go through that role for several weeks in practice. Oh, boy.

"Bob" Wilton socks a homer! Which goes to show that "Bob" is going to be a handy fellow to have hanging around the ball pasture this season.

And didn't see the smile on the faces of Otto and Charley Viegel when the home boys started clouting the old apple last Sunday.

Some people always look at the "dark" side of things. Do you know that it takes 65 muscles of the face to produce a frown, and only 13 to produce a smile? Why waste the energy?

Boy, page Mack Sennett. The six dancing girls get out of school early next month.

Seymour Wallace read the weather report the other day and saw that the weather man predicted rain. Seymour immediately took the big fish he had hanging outside his store in under cover—Can you imagine a bird walking in there to buy some fish. S. M. had a hard time explaining that he was not selling fish but fishing tackle.

Improvements Discussed By Village Board

The board held a special meeting Monday night at which the light and depot street questions were discussed.

The unanimous opinion of the board seemed to be to let the light question drop for the time being, but to make preparations for future installation of ornamental lights when the town is in a better financial condition.

This move on the part of the board will no doubt meet with approval from all sides.

The Depot street improvement will probably be discussed in a public meeting and will undoubtedly be brought before the citizens of the village in a referendum.

Consent of the board was given to W. A. Drom to connect up with the village water system north of town to supply his subdivision. As the property is out of the village limits Mr. Drom is doing the piping at his own expense and the water meter will be installed at the connection.

E. church made a trip to Union Grove on Monday afternoon for the purchase of a new bell to replace the one that was broken while announcing the signing of the armistice of the recent World War. HIGH SCHOOL PLAY PLEASURES BIG AUDIENCE

Acting, Scenery and the Costumes Are Given Much Comment

L. R. WATSON STARS

Great praise was given by everyone who attended "In the Garden of the Shah," at the high school auditorium Friday evening. Close to a thousand people packed into the hall to witness the high school players, and when we say "packed," we mean all that the word implies, for nearly one hour before the curtain was to rise every seat in the vast auditorium was occupied, and before the play started all the seats on the sides were taken and what available desks were to be had from the classrooms were brought into the great space on each side and were soon filled and lastly the eager audience had to stand wherever they could possibly find room to be had.

The play was centered around two Yankee engineers who gained admission to the Shah's garden and harem in Persia. These parts were played by Maurice Mumford and Lester Nelson. Maurice played the leading part, in which he made love and won the hand of Zoda (the Shah's daughter), which part was played exceedingly well by Vida Palmer. Lester, a chum of Maurice's, played opposite Vera Nelson and this young pair played their parts in great shape.

L. R. Watson, who took the part of a negro valet for the two young engineers, held a monopoly on the comedy part and was practically a whole show in himself. He rendered several comic songs and featured when he sang "Lovin' Sam, the Shiek of Alabama." The entire auditorium shook with applause after his rendering of this song and Mr. Watson was forced to give three encores before the play was allowed to continue.

Mable Vandusen probably had the hardest part of the play when she took the part of Nowehah, a nurse to Zoda. Throughout the play she took the part of a crystal gazer, and pursued the negro valet in urgent love. The negro claimed he already had enough trouble of his own without getting married and managed to turn a deaf ear to the appeals of his love-pursuing negro maid until the last, when he was finally won by her persistent love and charm. Watson and Mabel got a "big hand" when they sang together and did a dance "all of their own."

The part of the Shiek was played by Prof. Bright and was excellently rendered. The Shiek also sought the hand of the Shah's daughter, Zoda, claiming he had only 499 wives and wanted this beauty to make an even 500. But his main secret object was to gain possession of the Shah's gold mine, which he failed to obtain, and which was later turned over to the young engineers, along with the two beauties.

The part of the Shah was well taken care of by Albert Herman, whose hand of iron rule was broken by the appeals of the young women.

The scenery was made by the manual training and arts department of the school and was very beautiful, as were the gowns that were worn. The production was under the direction of Miss Brand.

"The Girl and the Case"

By Randall Parrish

CHAPTER XVIII

A Bridge of Love.

He paused, listening, but all remained quiet without, and he resumed his story.

"There is not much else to it, West. A little after one o'clock the shadow phoned in from the Union depot that Hobart had just purchased two tickets for Patience. We hustled over, but were too late to catch that train, but learned the girl had accompanied him on the trip. We caught another rattler two hours later, and got off at Patience, which is about three miles west of here. It is not much of a job to gather up gossip in a small burg, and, inside of ten minutes, I had extracted all I needed from the station agent. It seems this outfit was the summer sensation out here. We hoisted it for reasons of our own, and came around by way of the lake shore, aiming to keep out of sight until after dark. That is how we discovered that Seminole boat landed up on the beach, but with no yacht in sight. One of the fellows with me said Hogan did a boat-sinking job before and got away with it, and that is how I figured that maybe you had at the bottom of Lake Michigan—see? Well, we crept up here through the woods, but nothing happened. Didn't look as if the place had a soul within a hundred miles of it—no smoke, no light; not a d—n sound. We laid out and waited, not sure what we were up against. Finally we jimmied open the back door of this garage, just to find out whether those guys had a car out here, or not. They had, but we no more than located it when those two fellows came dragging you out of the back door of the house, and flung you in here like a bag of old linen. We lay still, and let them go back, but we hadn't any notion it was really you; so we crawled up to find out. That's the story. Now what do you think we better do?"

West moved his arms in an effort to restore circulation.

"How many with you?"

"Four altogether—hard hotted, too—five with us. Is there any light left in you, old man?"

"I'll say there is; I'd certainly like to get in one clip at 'Red' before the franks is over."

"That sounds vicious. Now, who is inside?"

"I saw five, and there may be others. If the crew of the Seminole are here also, that would make quite a bunch."

"I don't think they are, Captain. The station agent said several men bought tickets to Chicago early this afternoon. It is the real gang we've got cornered. Do you know just who they are?"

"Those I saw, were Hobart, 'Red' Hogan, the girl, a big fellow they called Mark who was on the yacht—"

"Mark Sennett; he's Hogan's side-kick, and tough as they make 'em."

"And a wiry little black-haired devil by the name of Dave."

"H—I, is he in this too? That must be 'Dago Dave.' That guy would cut your throat for fifty dollars. Any others?"

"Those were all I saw. No doubt Hobart's wife is in the house somewhere, guarding Natalie Coolidge probably."

"Six altogether, counting the woman."

"Yes, and you better count them, for they will fight like tigers. The girl held me up at the point of a gun."

"We've got to get the drop first, that's all. They're yellow, the whole outfit is yellow. Shootin' in the back is their style. Now, you know the lay inside the house; what is our best chance?"

West studied over the situation, his eyes staring into the darkness, and McAdams waited.

"Well, Mac," he said finally. "This is a new job for me, but I'd put a man out in front, and then take the others in through the back door. We'd have to rush it, of course. I know the front door is locked, and it couldn't be broken down quickly. I listened when those fellows went back, and I heard no click, as though they had locked the door behind them. They don't know anybody has been after them except me, and they believe I am done for. They feel so safe out here, they are a bit careless. I'll wager something we can walk straight in on the outfit; how does that strike you?"

"As the only feasible plan. Let's crawl out of here."

The arrangements were quickly perfected; a short, whispered conference in the dark; then one man crept silently away through the night toward the front of the house. McAdams added a few more words of instruction to the others, and, with West slightly in advance, revolvers drawn and ready, the five stole forward in the direction of the rear porch. The windows were either heavily curtained, or covered by outside shades, for no gleam of light was anywhere visible. West mounted the back steps silently, with McAdams close at his heels. A second later the entire bunch of officers were grouped before the door, poised breathlessly, listening for any sound from within. Nothing broke the impressive silence, and McAdams' hand closed over the knob, which he turned slowly. The door opened quietly into a darkened interior. For an instant he bent forward, peering through the narrow crack, endeavoring to learn what lay hidden beyond, the others gulvering behind him. There was scarcely the sound of a breath audible. The detective hesitated; such luck, such carelessness on the part of criminals seemed almost uncanny; he half suspected some trap. Then he became convinced that this was only the result of recklessness—the fellows felt so safe in this hidden hole in the woods as to neglect all precaution. He stepped cautiously inside, leaving the door ajar for the others to follow. Then they paused—straight ahead a double swinging door divided the kitchen in which they were from another room beyond. Through the center crack shone a single bar of light, barely visible, and forth through that same orifice came the sound of a voice speaking. McAdams flung up his hand in signal, and then crept silently forward.

It was apparently a quarrel among thieves over the spoils, each fearful lest the other was double-crossing. Hobart and 'Red' Hogan were doing most of the talking, although occasionally others chimed in, and once there was a woman's voice added to the debate. Seemingly the whole gang were present; a strong odor of tobacco smoke stole through the crack in the door, and both Hobart and Hogan swore angrily. Who was to remain out there on guard while Hobart and the girl returned to Chicago for the money was evidently the question. Hogan wishing to accompany them to make sure of his share. The woman sided with Hobart, the other men apparently ranged up with 'Red,' and some very plain talking was indulged in.

McAdams listened grimly, the light through the crack showing his lips curled in a smile of appreciation. He lowered his head, and with one eye at the slight opening gained a glimpse of the lighted room beyond. A moment, motionless, he stared in on the scene; then straightened up, and, with revolver in hand, signaled to the others to close in closer. They stood there for a tense instant, poised and eager; then the doors were flung crashing back, and they leaped recklessly forward, out of the darkness into the light. It was a furious fight—sharp, merciless, uncompromising. The thieves, startled, desperate, were hurled back by the first rush against the further wall, tables and chairs overturned, the shrieking woman pushed headlong into one corner, and one of the fellows downed by the crashing butt of a revolver. But the others rallied, maddened, desperate, rats caught in a trap, fighting as animals fight. Hobart fired, catching an assailant in the arm; Hogan snatched up a chair and struck viciously at West, who leaped straight forward, breaking the full force of the blow, and driving his own fist into the man's face. It was all over within a minute—the fierce fighting—the surprise turning the trick. Hobart went down cursing, the gun kicked out of his hand, his arm broken; Hogan, struggling still, but pinned to the floor by three men, was given a blow to the chin which left him unconscious, while the other two threw up their hands and yelled for mercy. McAdams wiped his streaming face, and looked around.

It was a shambles, the floor spotted with blood, the table overturned and broken, a blanket over one of the windows torn down, a smashed chair in one corner. The detective who had been shot was still lying in front of the door, 'Red' lay motionless, a ghastly cut over his eye, and Hobart, his arm dangling, sat propped up against the wall, cursing, malevolent, but helpless. On the other side stood Sennett and 'Dago Dave,' their hands high above their heads; each looking into the leveled barrel of a gun. The woman had got to her knees, still dazed from the blow which had felled her. The ex-servicio man smiled grimly, well satisfied.

"Some surprise party, eh, Jim?" he asked pleasantly. "This rather puts a crimp in your little game, I would say, old boy. Going to cop the whole boodle tomorrow, was you?"

"Who the h—l are you?"

"Well, if I answer your questions, perhaps you will answer mine. I am McAdams of the City Hall station, Chicago, and I know exactly what I am here after. So the best thing you guys can do is cough up. Who's that girl who has been working with you?"

Hogan Snatched Up a Chair and Struck Viciously at West.

Hobart glared sullenly, but made no response.

"You'll not answer?"

"Oh, go to h—l!"

"All right, old top. She is in this house somewhere, and can't get out. Somers, look around a bit; try behind those curtains over there."

The officer stepped forward, but at the same instant the draperies parted, and two girls stood beside each other in the opening; framed against the brighter glare of light beyond—two girls, looking so alike, except for dress and the arrangement of their hair, as to be almost indistinguishable—Natalie white faced, frightened, gazing with wide-open eyes on the strange scene before her; the other smiling and audacious, her glance full of defiance. It was the voice of the latter which broke the silence.

"Am I the one you want, Mr. Bob McAdams?" she asked clearly. "Very well, I am here."

McAdams stared at them both, gulping in startled surprise at the vision confronting him, unable to find words. Then his eyes fixed themselves on the face of the speaker.

"What!" he burst forth. "You, Del? Great Scott! your name was Hobart, wasn't it? Why, I never once connected you two together. Is—is this guy your father?"

"I don't know about that," she returned indifferently. "It is a matter of argument I believe. However, Bob, what's the odds now? I am the one you're after, Mister Fly-Cop; and here I am."

She walked forward, almost proudly, her eyes shining, and gazing fearlessly into his. He stepped back, one hand extended.

"No, Del, this must be a mistake. I—I can't believe it of you, you—you are not a crook."

"Oh, yes I am," she insisted, but with a tremor in the low voice. "I've never been anything else, Bobby boy—thanks, thanks to that thing down there."

Natalie still remained poised uncertainly in the doorway, scarcely realizing what was occurring before her; she saw suddenly a familiar face, and held out her hands.

"Oh, Matt, what is it?" she cried. "Is—is it all over?"

"Yes, all over dear; these are police officers."

"And that—that girl? She looks so much like me. Who is she? Do you know?"

West clasped her hands tightly, his voice sunk to a whisper.

"She is your sister, Natalie," he asserted soberly, "your twin sister."

Her unbelieving eyes swept to his face.

"My sister; my twin sister? But I had none."

"Yes, but you did," he insisted gently. "You never knew it, but Percival Coolidge did. This was his devilish scheme, plotted years ago when you were born. Now here is the end of it—the girl is your sister. There is no doubt of that."

"No doubt, you say! My sister!" Her head lifted, and there was a flame of color in her cheeks. "My sister!" she repeated, as though she would thus make it seem more true. "Then I will go to her, Matthew West."

She loosened the clasp of her fingers and walked forward, her eyes misted with tears. Straight across the room she went, her hands outstretched to where the other shrank back from her in embarrassment—between them still the gulf which love must bridge.

FARM BUREAU NEWS

"Colts add to value of work stock. Figures compiled from records collected in De Kalb county by the U. S. D. A., during the fiscal year beginning June, 1921, and ending June, 1922, show that on 45 farms on which no colts were raised there was a depreciation in value of horses of $87.20 per farm. On 36 farms in the same county where colts were raised there was no depreciation, but an increase in value of $27.08 per farm. The number of colts two years old or under on these farms averaged two head; for the 81 farms studied, the average was less than one colt per farm. The figures indicate that no extra horses were required on the farms raising colts since the number of cultivated acres per horse on those farms was 21.9, where no colts raised the average was 22.8 acres per horse."—J. H. Knox and C. C. Gutes, U. of I.

In this connection it is well to remember that the market for good draft horses is better than in seven or eight years and the demand is better and likely to hold its own. Some very good sales of draft horses have been reported in Lake county recently.

year. It is time now to get out your plants. For $1.00 you can get good Dunlop variety strawberry plants by joining the Farm Bureau Strawberry club. This is a state-wide club and this reasonable price is secured because through the 80 county farm bureaus in Illinois we have cooperated together and are able to put on such club work. This is only one small part of the advantages of being a Farm Bureau member. Why not save on grocery bills and make some good spending money by growing your own berries. Instructions will be given each boy or girl who enters the club.

Sweet Clover and Alfalfa

From the inquiries about alfalfa seed Lake county farmers are stronger than ever for alfalfa as a main crop on dairy farms. The Farm Bureau has handled a record quantity of alfalfa seed this year, more than ever before. Those who have been reading Professor Fraser's articles on alfalfa and sweet clover will appreciate their value on dairy farms. He shows that alfalfa hay fed instead of timothy in the standard ration increased the milk flow per cow 13 lbs per day. In the case of sweet clover replies from northern Illinois dairymen, many from Lake county, representing over 400 acres of sweet clover used as pasture show the following. Two-thirds of an acre will pasture a cow for six months, two months in the late summer and fall after seeding in March and four months the following summer. In all cases the cows were in fine condition while on the sweet clover and actually gained in milk per day compared with a blue grass pasture. All this was done at no expense except the cost of seed, and all the while the sweet clover was vigorously at work storing nitrogen into the soil and otherwise improving soil conditions better than any plant or crop could do.

The man who wishes to keep hens on a city lot or in the back yard, says the United States department of agriculture, should purchase pullets in the fall or buy day-old chicks or hatching eggs in the spring. Well-matured pullets are the only kind to buy, as they will begin to lay before cold weather sets in. The maturity of pullets is indicated by the red color of the comb and by the size of the birds. Day-old chicks are now a regular market commodity in all parts of the country and are shipped long distances. It is much harder to raise small chickens in the small space of a back yard than out in the country where there is plenty of grass range.

"PRISONER"

I am a caged thing,
Caged even as men
Cage the unreasoning
Beast of the jungle.
I am a criminal,
Partaker of crime,—
Are not all men
At some time servants
Of their passions?
All men are at some time
I was.

I am a murdered,—
I was a servant of my passions.
I tasted of revenge.
The sweet fruit of revenge.
The revenge was sweet.
My lifelong imprisonment
Is also sweet;
Sweet, because I need not
Mingle with those dirty
Yellow-livered dogs,
My prosecutors.

I thank God that
Huge piles of stone
Separate me from that
Vile world; and yet
I sometimes wonder
If I should like my liberty
As well as I do
My confinement,—
I wonder? And still this
Imprisonment is a thing so
Sweet that one small draught
Would intoxicate anyone.

And I have drunk and shall drink
Heartily of it for life.

At night the stars come out
And so do I.—Come out of my
Vile body and dream. I dream
That my imprisonment is only
A dream and that when I awake
I shall be a freeman, with passions.
Perhaps I shall, perhaps.

Illinois Banker Association Asks Legislation for Tuberculosis Eradication Funds

The executive council of Illinois Bankers' association passed the following resolution at their mid-winter meeting, held at Chicago on January 24, 1923.

Tuberculosis Eradication
"Whereas, Tuberculosis among the cattle, hogs and poultry of Illinois is causing a loss of approximately three million dollars per year from meat condemned and from deaths among cattle on our farms, which condition in our livestock is according to our best medical authorities responsible for much of the tuberculosis in children and

WHEREAS, The work of testing herds of cattle in Illinois, while but a small beginning, has demonstrated that tuberculosis in live stock can be eliminated in a comparatively few years if adequate funds are provided. Resolved, That the legislature be requested to appropriate an adequate sum for the purpose of eradicating tuberculosis in the herds of this state, and pass such legislation as will more effectively tend to eradicate that disease."

Mites are one of the chief causes of low egg production. They do their damage on the birds at night on the roosts. They can be best gotten rid of by cleaning the poultry houses and painting the roosts with a strong coal-tar disinfectant. Painting at this time will save more trouble later in the summer.

THE LIGHT OF WESTERN STARS by Zane Grey

OUT under the wonderful western stars, near the turbulent Mexican border of the present day, most of the action in this thrilling story takes place.

While replete with the atmosphere, romance, exciting events and human elements so characteristic of its author's work, it strikes a note that is different from the average of western fiction; indeed, it is quite different from any of Zane Grey's other stories and has been acclaimed in various quarters as the best he has yet written.

Grass Lake School

ARNOLD SHUNNESON, Editor

The lotus of Grass Lake are a source of pleasure and wonder to hundreds of people every year. Their origin seem to be buried in mystery. Old settlers say at first there was a small patch of lotus. Now they cover several hundred acres.

The large cream colored flowers with the center-like a funnel in which the seeds mature are held erect on long stems which project above the water from 18 inches to two feet. The leaves are round, with the stem in the center. This flower is found in few places in the world. India claims it as their sacred flower.

There are beds of flowers in some of the southern states, but the flowers are not the same as these. Colonel Vidyard delivered a speech on this flower. He named his home after the flower, "Lotus."

Miss Cole of English Prairie also made use of the lotus products for her beauty parlor. Boys gather and sell many hundred of the pods every year. These are gilded and used for winter bouquets.

It is well worth the trip to visit this wonderful bed of flowers.

ACCORDING TO SCHEDULE

Uncle Theodore, who was visiting, wished to talk to Betty's father at the office. Not being able to find the telephone directory he appealed to his little niece for information regarding the number.

"Betty, what does your mother ask for when she talks to Daddy at the office?"

"Money," replied the child promptly.

RANK: RANKER

The British general, one of the swanky kind, tramped pompously into a hospital on an unexpected tour of inspection one day. Directly in his path was a woman on her knees, scrubbing the floor. Merely noting his shoes besides her and without looking up, she asked politely:

"Would you please fetch me a fresh pull of water?"

The dignitary's face became swollen and red with wrath, but he managed to splutter:

"Hang-it, madame, I'm a general!" Whereupon the woman rose to her feet and fixed him with a look of imperious scorn.

"Hang it, sir," she cried, "I'm a duchess!"

AN AVERTED TRAGEDY

A dark-haired young man, dressed in a gray suit, entered a restaurant and ordered a portion of fried chicken. He was the only patron of the place, but still he waited more than an hour while the waiter gossiped with the cook and consumed a few shots of old stuff he had managed to siphon from the proprietor's private stock.

Finally the young fellow became impatient and walked out. When the waiter sauntered into the dining room he found a white-haired old man, dressed in a gray suit, occupying the chair vacated by his first patron. His eyes bustling from his head, he hurried back to the kitchen.

"For heaven's sake," he gasped, "Cork up that bottle and put that order of chicken on the fire. This guy is getting foolish and he's likely to die on our hands any minute."

THE REALIST

Speaker: "Think of the poverty on the other side! Think of it! How would you feel if your family were composed of a widow with little orphans?"

Casey: "I'd feel like a corpse."

Start of an Unpleasant Evening.

"Oh, how I wish I were young again!" sighed Mrs. Martyr of Martynville.

"So do I," agreed her husband.

"Say just about a year younger than when I married you."

THE CALL

"Remember," said the serious friend "your country is calling you."

"I know it," replied the seasoned Senator, "but there's not the unanimity I'd like. Different parts of the country are calling me different things."

PUNISHMENT TO FIT

"Willie, if you don't stop turning on those winter spigots, I shall give you a bath," threatened the cherub's mother.

In deciding on the size of the backyard poultry flock, says the United States department of agriculture, two things must be taken into consideration—the space available and the quantity of table scraps available. It is not often that the flock will consist of more than 20 or 25 hens, and for a flock of this size there should be a yard space not less than 25 by 30 feet. On the average there should be 20 to 30 square feet for each bird.

NO THRILL

A new stenographer, after having held her job for a week, went up to her boss and announced firmly that she intended to resign.

"Wages not high enough?" he asked.

"No, sir, they're satisfactory."

"Work too hard for you?"

"Oh, no, sir, it's very easy."

"Then what's the trouble?"

"Well, sir, I have some self-respect, and I have just discovered that your wife isn't a bit jealous of men."

THE BRUTISH NOBILITY

Mrs. Dixby: "That Marquis of Queonsbury, or whoever he is, must be a terribly savage person to allow all those brutal prize fights."

Mrs. Tompkins: "Yes, he must be. But I'll say he isn't half as bad as the Count—the fellow they're all knocked down for."

FIGURES MUST LIE

Simple Soldat: They say they're one deck of playin' cards to every nineteen people in the United States."

Not-so-Simple Soldat: "Tat's nuts, you can't get nineteen people into one poker game."

NOT TO BE TRIFLED WITH

A dusky rookie was doing guard duty for the first time. Along came one of those officers who wear silver chickens on their shoulders. The rookie naturally got excited and flustered.

"Halt!" he yelled and then stopped.

"Well, what are you going to do next?" inquired the colonel after he had remained on the spot like a graven image for some seconds.

"I ain't sure, Boss," admitted the darky. Then he added dangerously: "But, by golly, yo' better stan' right wahah yo' is till I thinks what it is Ise going to do."

AHEAD OF SCHEDULE

Doctor: "Hang it all! I made a mistake and gave one of my patients the wrong medicine."

Mrs. D—: "Good heavens. Did it kill him?"

Doctor: "Dash it, no. He's entirely well."

JUSTIFIED

Judge: "You were a party to the crime when the after-dinner speaker was murdered. Did you know him?"

Defendant: "Yes. He was a crime to the party."

LIMITED

"Yes," said the new private, "army pay doesn't amount to so much, but a fellow ought to be able to pick up a few dollars at poker."

"Mebbe so," replied the old-timer, "but so far most of my winnings have been confined to quarters."

DOUBTFUL

It always pays to tell a maid. Here is the first kiss you've asseyed. But in the kiss I'm not so sure it pays to play the amateur.

RANK EXTRAVAGANCE

It was on an ocean voyage. The insurance agent, unwilling to lose a chance of canvassing so many prospects who could not possibly get far away, turned loose a flood of eloquence on a Scotchman.

"Surely," he said, you see the advantage of taking out a policy if for nothing except to cover your burial expenses."

"Well, till we get to land, mon," retorted the wily Scot. "I might be lost at sea."

Methodist Episcopal Church News

"The Conquering Kingdom Imperiled" was the theme of last Sunday's morning discourse. A bird's eye view of the situation in the world-wide warfare between the armies of Christ and the armies of Satan brought out prominently the following features:

In answer to the prayers of God's people and resulting from their work and sacrifice, Jesus Christ has won such victories in recent years as had scarcely been dreamed before. Great stretches of moral and spiritual territory have been won from the kingdom of Satan and incorporated in the kingdom of Christ. Christ's banner now floats over wide fields of moral and spiritual realms where Satan held full sway but lately.

But Satan is striking back on every battlefield of the whole earth. He is making the most desperate counter attacks in the deepest determination to win back his lost provinces. The battle lines have been vastly lengthened, the forces on both sides have been vastly increased the war has become vastly more intense, the art of camouflage on Satan's side has been brought to far higher degrees of perfection than ever before. We are in a stupendous crisis for the saving of human civilization and the salvation of the whole human race. It will end in so stupendous a victory for one side or the other that the losing side is finally done for.

With the enlarged areas of the warfare, the absolute necessity of swifter action everywhere to save the day, the demands on the people of God are multiplied. It is going to take millions of men and women and billions of money to win for Christ and humanity and civilization.

The men and women are forthcoming. Thousands upon thousands of the cream of our youth are volunteering every year for the work of God in every field.

The sums of money required look staggering. But the leaders of Christ's armies have surveyed the fields and made careful estimates and find that even the vast sums required to win are provided for by the Lord Himself in His infinite wisdom, in this way: God has commanded all to pay the tenth of their net income for the great work of His kingdom; and careful calculation shows that God has just now put into the hands of His professed people sufficient income that when it is all tithed it will just about provide the stupendous revenues required to save the day in the awful crisis of the world conflict now on.

The whole church of Christ is, therefore, now in a campaign to get the last one of God's people to come to complete obedience to God and pay the tenth of their net income to God's work, keeping just as strict account as for any business affairs. Already millions in all the churches are obeying this law of God and wherever this law is being obeyed the funds are surpassing the highest calculations of the leaders who had figured on it.

Many of the people of God in Antioch are titheers and some have been for many years. The appeal is for every one who wants a share in the winning of the great world war for Christ and humanity to keep strict account of all income, lay aside one-tenth of it always when received, and turn it over to the treasuries of God, where it will count the most for the winning of the great war.

"Shall We Hate People," was the subject for Sunday evening. The answer from reason and scripture was that to hate any person is to wreck our own character completely.

St. Ignatius' Church News

Last Sunday was the fifth Sunday after Easter, and all the services were well attended. Mr. Fred Fuller of Chicago was present and played for the church school and for morning prayer. The music was well sung, and the services were hearty throughout.

Last Sunday is known as Rogation Sunday, because Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week are Rogation days, when the church bids us pray that the crops may be blessed. In ancient times there were processions through the fields and litanies were sung as they marched. The fruits of the earth are most important and it is only right that we should ask for a blessing upon the labors of the husbandmen.

Thursday of this week is Ascension Day, when we keep the memory of Our Lord's Ascension into heaven. It marks the end of His earthly ministry, and also the beginning of the ministry of His followers. The sermon on Sunday morning had for its text: "Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord, or who shall rise up in His holy place? Even he that hath clean hands, and a pure heart; and that hath not lifted up his mind unto vanity, nor sworn to deceive his neighbor." Psalm 24:3-4.

Next Sunday is the Sunday after the Ascension, and also the 2nd Sunday in the month. It is the monthly occasion of the visitation of the priest-in-charge. There will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 8:00 in the morning, and again at 11:00. Every communicant of the church should make his or her communion at either one of these services. This will be the 2nd visitation of Father Gwyn.

May 20th is Whitsunday, and May 27th is Trinity Sunday. Mr. Brock will be ordained deacon by Bishop Anderson in the Church of the Epiphany, Chicago, on Trinity Sunday. Everyone is invited to attend the ordination.

WASN'T NEEDED TWICE

Not three months had elapsed since the death of his wife before old Dick Gooch began to take notice of the Widow Tilly. Suddenly, however, the affair broke off for no apparent reason. A friend demanded an explanation.

"We've quit," said Dick tersely.

"How did that happen?"

"Well, by jinks, when a feller asks a woman to marry him and she comes at him with a dipper of hot water to throw over him and sticks her daws onto him, and calls him nine different names and threatens to boss-wip him, he'll take a hint and leave, if he ain't a idiot. Some folks can't take a hint, but I can, by jinks."

About the only way table scraps can be made to bring in a return in the small town or suburb is through the medium of a flock of hens. Each hen in her pullet year, says the United States department of agriculture, should produce at least 10 dozen eggs, or an average an egg every three days. Thus, a flock of 10 laying hens would yield 100 dozen, worth at a conservative estimate, $10. It also is worth something to have eggs concerning which there can be no doubt, and to have a supply of potent fertilizer for the garden.

Former Antioch Man Writes for Hearst Papers

The following article will be of interest to many of the older residents of Antioch, as Mr. Larkin formerly owner and conducted what is now the King Drug Store.

Professor Edgar Lucien Larkin, director of the Observatory at Mt. Lowe, who has devoted a lifetime to the study of heavenly bodies, celebrated his seventy-sixth birthday anniversary recently and made the prediction that the greatest advancement of the ages in the study of astronomy and the other sciences would be achieved in the next few years.

"For sixty-five years I have watched the increasing interest in the study of the science," said Professor Larkin at his studio in the Pacific Electric Club.

"When I began the study of the stars at the age of eleven, very few people in the Illinois town where I lived knew anything about astronomy. Books on any of the sciences were difficult to obtain. Today the world at large seems to have an awakened interest in all of the sciences and if human being advance along these lines in the next few years as they have in the past year it is impossible to imagine the heights they will attain through their investigations.

"Today astronomers and other men of science are devoting every waking hour of the night and day to the study of spiral nebulae, the motion of the suns in the line of sight, celestial photography, celestial radiography, the disintegration of radioactive substances and many other subjects.

"Within the next few years, tomorrow, as it were, all of these still unsolved scientific problems may be made clear."

A number of Professor Larkin's friends greeted him yesterday at the home of Mrs. Corn J. Stewart, 307 South Brand boulevard, Glendale, in celebration of his natal day, when the astronomer gave a short sketch of his work.

Professor Larkin, who has been a contributor to the Hearst papers for twenty-three years, has had more than 8,000 columns of copy published on scientific subjects.

Professor Larkin is a member of twenty-eight scientific organizations, including the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Astronomical and Astrophysical Society of America. He has been a director of Mt. Lowe Observatory for twenty-three years. Even today he devotes ten hours a day to research and study.

Professor Larkin was born April 5, 1847. He came to Los Angeles April 30, 1900, and during his time here his writings have been translated and published in a dozen different countries.

A NEW USE FOR THE AUTO

Are you troubled with rats, especially around the chicken house, garage, barn or vegetable garden? Fasten a length of hose on the end of the exhaust from your gasoline engine—whether it be a "flyer" or a tractor—hook the car up within reach of the rat burrow, and adjust the carburetor for a rich mixture. Pack damp earth around it. Run the engine at moderate speed for 10 minutes or more and the rats will be destroyed. This method is entirely practical, according to the United States department of agriculture, when there are only a small number of holes or the area to be fumigated is not too extensive. It may also be used successfully in destroying rats beneath floors or in other places where a concentration of the gas can be obtained.

Community effort is urged in getting rid of rats by the above means and also by cleaning up rubbish, spreading poison baits, setting traps, and rat proofing buildings. Individual properties from which rats are exterminated soon become reinfested if there are rats in the neighborhood. The biological survey, United States department of agriculture, is willing to assist in organizing and carrying out antirrat campaigns wherever possible and will furnish upon application bulletins and detailed directions for poisoning with barium carbonate and setting traps.

LOYAL TO HIS COMPANY

The village cut-up approached an insurance agent and informed him that he was in the market for a fifty-thousand-dollar accident policy. When questioned, he admitted that he was a bad risk. He owned and drove several high-powered racing cars, he said. "Don't believe I'd be doing the right thing in writing you up," the insurance man informed him. "Not fair to my company. You—you often ride in those cars with other men's wives, I believe?"

"Well, yes—frankly—but—"

"Well, one of those wives is mine and—frankly—your life isn't worth a plugged nickel."

A SUMMER BARGAIN

It was a Sunday evening, the month was August, the place was New Orleans. A heated gentleman of color was weaving his way down the street when his attention was distracted by a lighted bookshop window. He alighted up and carefully read the inscription:

"Mph!" he ejaculated, mopping his dripping brow. "Ah! gib me'n date. Ah! gib a' dollars if winter comes special next week."
